Neither the poor nor the rich created America's economic problems, democrats and republicans created our problems! Whatever your politics, name-calling doesn't help. Angry and self-righteous politicians only further divide us when we need to come together most. We need leaders with self-discipline who can successfully work with all groups in our society. America needs leaders with the minds of scientists. We need leaders with the courage to try new solutions. The (red) chart below shows that in the past 5 years Washington has added $543,950 to the national debt for every job they "created". The (blue) chart shows that the national debt is crushing the middle class. The New York Times chart shows that Washington's new jobs pay far less than the old jobs. We're failing! Borrowing and spending has not made America stronger, it's made us weaker. Should we continue policies that have not worked? America needs new policies, we need more creative intelligence and courage; American politicians, capitalists and workers have failed to work together to build a strong and prosperous economy. Voting for new politicians whose only promise is to implement tried and failed trickle-down economics with ever more debt will also fail. We need new economic ideas. I have some new ideas and I'm happy to share them. Call me: Ray Mullaney.

An Unbalanced Recovery

Most of the jobs added during the recovery have been in lower-wage industries.
